Key Topics Discussed:

A Seminar topic on "Employability Skill Enhancement" was a transformative experience for all participants. In today's competitive job market, possessing strong employability skills is essential for career success. Employability skills, also known as soft skills, are the non-technical abilities that enable individuals to effectively navigate the workplace, interact with colleagues and clients, and adapt to changing circumstances. This report explores the importance of enhancing employability skills and provides strategies for individuals to develop and strengthen these skills.

Enhancing employability skills is essential for navigating today's competitive job market and advancing in one's career. By continuously developing and strengthening these skills, individuals can increase their job performance, expand their career opportunities, and experience greater job satisfaction. Employers also benefit from hiring employees who possess strong employability skills, as they contribute to a positive work environment and drive organizational success. The session ended successfully with vote of thanks by Mr. V. Barathnivash, Assistant Professor, Department of Management, AVIT.
